Water'S Journey

Once upon a time, on a tall mountain, lived a tiny drop of water named Drippy. Drippy was curious and wanted to explore. One day, he slid down the mountain, turning into a small stream. He met other water drops and they joined him, forming a bigger stream. They flowed through forests, giving water to thirsty trees and flowers. They reached a village where children played and splashed in the water. Drippy felt happy to see the joy he brought. Finally, they reached the sea, where Drippy realized his journey had made a big difference. He had helped plants grow and brought happiness to children. Drippy was proud and understood that even a tiny drop can make a big difference.
